Thanks so much for hosting us, I know it was a lot of work. Also thanks to all that helped the Rozman's with cooking, cleaning the shed, etc.

The events at the Menomonee Falls Historical Society could not have been better, the weather was great at both events and the crowds really loved our cars, thanks again to all that participated. There is also 1 more event at the Menomonee Falls historical society on October 7th and 8th. 2023 Waukesha Christmas Parade
Sunday, December 3rd
Drivers Needed

The Parade theme this year is “A Holiday Gem” and the City of Waukesha will be celebrating the parades 60th anniversary. The route this year will once again be different due to safety protocols. We will decorate our cars in the Christmas spirit, organizers of the parade have asked if we could have holiday appropriate lighting on our cars. The weather at the parade has been in our favor nearly every year and I am confident this year will be too. A portion of the proceeds from this year's parade will be donated to local community organizations as directed by the City of Waukesha Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

The parade starts at 4:00 p.m. so we plan on heading to the staging area at about 3:00 p.m. This will give us plenty of time to decorate our cars, look at the other participants floats, listen to the bands play some seasonal music and visit with each other at this last outdoor event. For those interested in driving to the parade together, we will meet at Culvers Restaurant at 840 W. Sunset Ave. Waukesha between 2:15 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. for some hot chocolate before we head over to the staging area at 3:00 p.m. If you have any questions, please feel free to give Dave or Linda a call at 262-719-1056.

We look forward to seeing you there!!!

Dave and Linda Huenink!!

'A' Trip Back to October 1929

A Hagerty article from October 29th, 2019, by Jeff Peek*

It was the best of times, it was the worst of times. While admittedly pilfering the opening line of Charles Dickens' Tale of Two Cities, there is no better way to describe the United States in the days leading up to, and immediately following, Black Tuesday.

Ninety years ago [96 years ago as of October 29, 2023], on October 29, 1929, panicked Wall Street investors traded some 16 million shares on the New York Stock Exchange in a single day. Two months after wild speculation had pushed the market to its peak in August '29, and less than one week after stock prices began to tumble, the unthinkable happened: the market crashed.

Billions of dollars were lost. Individuals and businesses were in financial ruin. The Great Depression, the worst economic downturn in the history of the civilized world, lasted nearly a decade. No American was spared, no industrialized country excluded from the misery. The automotive market was hit particularly hard—right on the heels of its rise to world prominence.

According to The Industrial Revolution in America (2006), by Kevin Hillstrom and Laurier Collier Hillstrom, “By the end of the 1920s, there was approximately one motor vehicle for every six people in the United States. In 1929 alone, more than 5.3 million passenger cars, buses, and trucks were sold across the country—nearly one million more than had been sold a mere year earlier. These figures not only confirmed the automobile industry as a major force in American commerce and culture in its own right, but provided testimony to the industry’s importance to other industries.”

To be sure, the success or failure of the auto industry affected people and businesses in numerous related trades: oil, rubber, steel, glass, leather, hardwood, tool and die operations, and service stations, as well as every business that catered to workers in those fields—from financial institutions to local restaurants and pubs. As the Hillstroms point out, the Depression also put a halt to a rapid expansion of highways, commercial development, and residential housing.

In 1930, automobile sales declined by two million from the previous year and fell another two million by 1932. Since unemployed people don’t buy cars, the workers who built them soon faced the same situation. The Ford Motor Company, for example, employed 128,000 people in the spring of 1929 and by August 1931, only 37,000 were still employed there. Since carmakers were forced to cut corners whenever possible during those lean years, that meant longer working hours and less pay. Feeling unappreciated, many Ford workers pushed to unionize, a suggestion that infuriated Henry Ford. He so fiercely opposed the idea that he employed a “security force” to silence the disgruntled workers, who he felt should be grateful they had a job at all. It was a battle that Ford and the auto industry would ultimately lose; the United Auto Workers was founded in May 1935.

Despite diminished auto production, some historians marvel that the industry weathered the storm as well as it did. “Perhaps the really extraordinary fact is that so many [automobiles] were sold,” Philip Smith wrote in Wheels Within Wheels: A Short History of American Motor Car Manufacturing (1968). “On the average, the per capita income had been slashed just about in half. Hundreds of thousands of people who did have jobs were not sure they would have them tomorrow. Few were inclined to tempt fortune by purchasing a new car. Prosperity had been ‘just around the corner’ for a long, long time, and there was widespread suspicion that the distance to the corner might be lengthening, as indeed it was.”

Small automakers were hit hardest, of course, since they had limited capital and little margin for error. Among the car builders, both big and small, that succumbed to the Great Depression were Peerless (1931), Cunningham (1931), Doble (1931), Durant (1932), De Vaux (1932), Marmon (1933), Franklin (1934), Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg (1937), Pierce-Arrow (1938), Stutz (1939), and Hupmobile (1939).

Only the strongest survived, and that meant The Big Three—General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler—as well as Hudson, Nash-Kelvinator, Packard, Studebaker, and Crosley. None of those non-Big Three automakers still exist today. Surprisingly, three brands born in the late '20s also managed to keep their heads above water in the '30s, but all folded decades later: Pontiac (1926–2010), DeSoto (1928–61), and Plymouth (1928–2001).

Today, most of us are more familiar with Black Friday than Black Tuesday, and for good reason: To most Americans, the day after Thanksgiving marks the unofficial start of the holiday season. October 29, 1929, on the other hand, was the unofficial start of a decade of hardship in the auto industry and beyond.

The Annual Picnic at Chris & Kate Rozman’s farm on August 20th...a very warm day to say the least. Members sought refuge under the shade tree’s. Plenty of sweet corn, grill chickens and other sides were had for lunch. A tour of the farm on the hay wagon was a plus. Thank you again to Chris, Kate and all the helpers they had. It was a great picnic!!

Looking back at past events...

On September 17, 2023, a rainy Sunday morning, a group of twelve club members met at the McDonalds in Big Bend. They headed west to Elkhorn to their first stop at Lake Geneva Coffee Roasters. The Roaster is operated by Jeremiah Fox and his wife.

We learned where coffee comes from in the world and how those various countries provide different types and flavors of coffee beans. Interesting factoid is that the coffee bean is actually green in color before roasting. We saw how coffee was roasted in his large roaster. Coffee cherries are classified as fruits because they contain seeds that are processed into roasted beans. These coffee trees generate the cherry-like fruits from which we obtain our beloved beverage's beans; in essence, this means that your regular cup of java counts as a fruity treat. The owner uses a blend of various beans to his coffee flavors are consistent throughout the year and he showed us how a raw batch of beans was roasted. Raw coffee beans are dropped into loaders and then into a rotating drum. The drum is pre-heated to a temperature of around 420 degrees. After 12-15 minutes depending on the type of roast, the roasted beans will exit the drum at around 195 degrees and are then taken out into a cooling tray at the front of the roaster. He roasts the beans at 2 different temperatures to produce the 2 different flavors. The higher temperature opens up the bean more for a different flavor. The group had an opportunity to sample his two types of coffee flavors. Jeremiah's wife talked about Coffee cupping, or coffee tasting, as the practice of observing the tastes and aromas of brewed coffee and how to do it. It is like slurping soup.

Lake Geneva Coffee Roasters provides coffee to numerous grocery stores, restaurants and specialty coffee shops in southeastern Wisconsin and their business is ever expanding. Jeremiah and his wife provide some truly wonderful coffee and believes brewing a great cup of coffee is a science and craft. As the sun started to shine on the group, we continued to head west to Delavan for a Wall Dog scavenger hunt where the group asked to identify 15 Wall Dogs' paintings on the sides of buildings throughout the city.

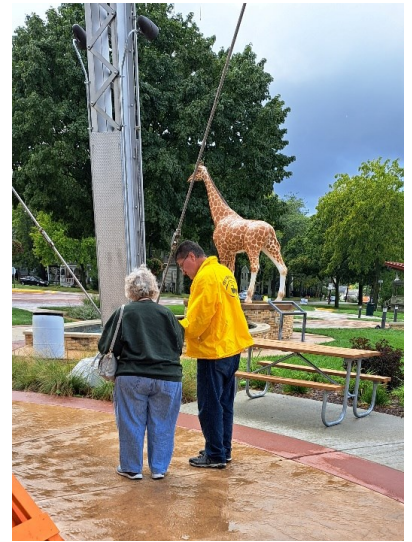

For those unfamiliar with what a wall dog is – it is the painting of wall advertisements on buildings as various beautiful murals. Jan Olsen and Mark Ackermann were able to identify all of them correctly and each were awarded a $15.00 gift card from Kwik Trip. Congratulations to both. Delavan is also known for the birth place of the Barnum and Bailey circus. There were various large circus animals displayed in a park along with informational signage. The group then headed to Elizabeths Café in Delavan for something to eat and some good conversation about our day, and just some good comradery. When we left the sun was shining brightly and we all realized we had a wonderful day learning about coffee roasting, finding some Wall Dogs and enjoying each other's company.

Linda and I would like to thank everyone for coming to our fall tour and hope everyone had an enjoyable time and we would like to thank Jeremiah for his time educating us about coffee.

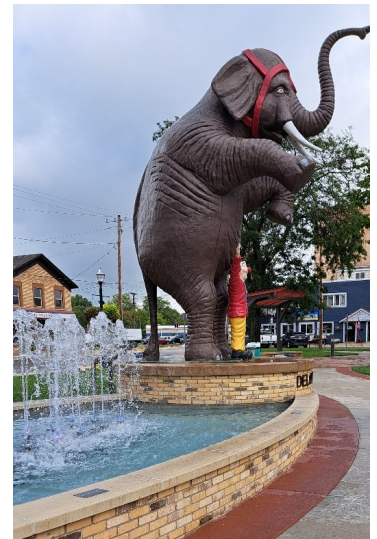

Until next time,
Dave & Linda
